“ I remember Jack practicing the Saxophone everyday. We could hear him clearly two house his way. He was very good at that. The other thing I remember is he was a great tap dancer. He had a set of practice stairs in the basement that Joe Gephart (lived next door) helped him build. He could go up one side and down the other, kept dancing on the entire time. He was a great friend as we were growing up I think of him often.
